Charlotte Morgan

Embellished Black & Blanc

Charlotte Morgan's Embellished Black & Blanc is a monochrome and gold dream, with striking elegance in every stroke. Textures of paint and gold leaf dance in balance across the trio of panels like a refined structure on canvas. The stark black and white contrasts are softened by hand-finished gold leaf - timeless, bold, and beautifully composed.

Venice Shadows

Venetian architecture appears bold and striking in this simple yet effective black and white photograph. The arching columns are echoed in the water beneath, while a solitary figure makes their way across the frame. The still and silent moment gives us contemplation and curiosity, with pleasing shapes and stark contrast.

Balconies & Architectural Kaleidoscope

Architectural photography embraces the contrast and structure to transform buildings in to living sculptures. Light and shadow carve bold silhouettes in geometric and sweeping form. The interplay of sharp angles and flowing curves is visually pleasing, with a somewhat hypnotic quality of line and pattern. It showcases the artistry of the urban landscape.

Night Sky

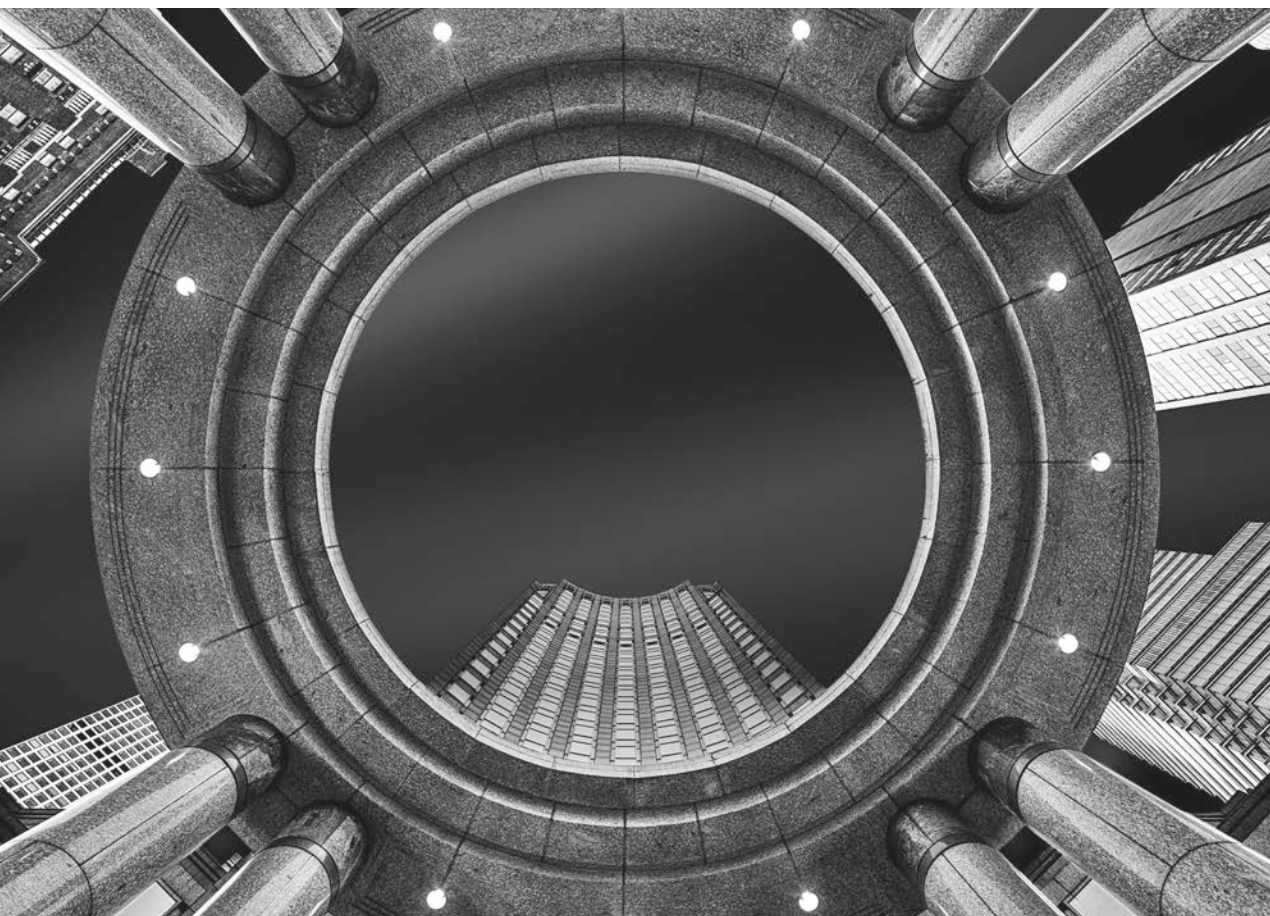

From our view on the ground, we are given a camera lens-like view gazing upward in to the night sky. The architectural structure that surrounds us is the perfect symmetrical window, like a portal to the night sky above. The play of curves and angles means that we are given a satisfying view of this man-made shape. The black and white contrast is the perfect for such a photo.

Mall Ceiling

The dramatic history of The Whiteley Shopping Centre and it's impressive dome is one of indefatigable ambition. Conceived by its namesake William Whiteley some 130 years ago as London's first department store, the once global emporium of the senses has long-served as testament to the British entrepreneurial spirit.

Santiago De Compostela

The spiral staircase twists like an elegant ribbon, unfurling upwards in a hypnotic manner. The brick steps and wooden banister have the story of footsteps past, while light and shadow dance on the spiralling curves. The textures found in the bricks and their geometric form is the perfect contrast to the more organic-like twists of the staircase.

Concentric Pattern

The Art Deco door stands as a statement of design, with its geometric pattern framed by sharp lines and polished symmetry. A circular shape spreads across the surface of each panel, with sophistication and an air of the time period's luxurious essence. Twin golden handles gleam as well-worn accents, inviting our hands to grasp them and step in to a new world.

Land Ahoy & Vertigo

From above, these luxury apartment buildings rise in perfect symmetry, their streamlined and modern facades along with their geometric structure creating instant curiosity. At the heart of the residential complex sports courts, manicured greenery and even a yacht show glimpses of life in the city. Windows and balconies show the residents viewpoints to the outside world, in the same echo as our view down into their domain.

Maserati

The 1956 Maserati A6G was the factory demonstrator for the famous Italian Mille Miglia race. It was one of the first cars suitable for both track and public roads. To meet demand in the early 1950s Maserati turned to Coachbuilder Zagato to create an alloy body for a GT car weighing less than 1,800 pounds using aircraft streamlining. Only 20 Zagatos were ever produced each of which were custom made.
