One Empty Seat

According to a study, the concept of having a 'tell' is a bit of an urban myth. When people were told to judge if a person was lying or not by scrutinising their behaviours it proved to be 10% LESS effective than randomly guessing with the flip of a coin. So if you're a bad liar, you may be better at poker than you first thought.

Fashion by Willie Christie

Born in the late 1940's, Willie Christie took a varied route to get to his career as a Fashion Photographer turned Film Maker. It was a commission from Over 21 Magazine in 1973 that kick started his full time photography career. Willie Christie's work has been showcased Worldwide and his Mick Jagger portrait of 1969 was selected for the international tour of Les Recontres D'Arles 2010 exhibition. Having been lured in to filmmaker in the late 1980s, the launch of Willie's Limited Edition Collection in 2011 marked the first time the photographer has delved into his personal archives to showcase work that has not been displayed for over 30 years.

John Kobal by Willie Christie

During an interview with Women's Wear Daily, Willie Christie showcased his skills for candid photography, by capturing John Kobal mid-conversation with the interviewer. A poster of Marlene Dietrich is prominently positioned behind Kobal, his partially illuminated face appearing like and echo to hers. The photo is a great example of when art imitates life.

Marie Helvin 1975 by Willie Christie

Often living with other likeminded creatives and people who worked in the fashion industry, Willie Christie was given the opportunity to work with Vogue. Wanting to recreate the feel of the Hollywood club scene, working with Grace Coddington and Christopher Drake to style and create a set with this specific image in mind. The photo tells a story and guides our imaginations to another place. The model emulating that of a mysterious nightclub singer or movie starlet from a past era.

Sue Purdy by Willie Christie

Willie Christie's true passion has always been fashion photography, and that passion paired with his skill is evident in this photoshoot with model Sue Purdy, as he uses the lens to accentuate and flatter the poses pulled by the iconic model. The sultry model's outfit is ever accentuated by some masterful lighting and careful composition, with Christie masterfully creating echoing angles in the shot.

RL914

Angelica Huston by Willie Christie

Willie Christie is an expert of analogue film, in an era without photoshop or airbrushing. This portrait of Angelica Huston for Vanity Fair magazine was taken on a historic film camera and Christie used techniques during film processing to achieve the hazy look. The delicate grain of the photo is a deliberate effort to increase the texture and intrigue, as Huston looks away from the camera in a sultry manner.

Carrie Nygren 1977 by Willie Christie

As one of his most preferred models, Willie Christie would use Carrie Nygren as often as he could - as she was iconic in front of the lens, and easy to work with behind it. This amazing and dynamic portrait has Nygren cutting an elegant shape across the frame, her hair seemingly blowing in the wind and the light falling softly on her face. It is remarkably simple, yet extremely captivating studio shot.

A fantastic example of automobile documentation with this studio style photograph that pays justice to the immaculate body work of the antique vehicle. The MT4 O.S.C.A emerged in the spring of 1948 and was the first O.S.C.A for Maserati Tipo. The term 'OscA' is short for Officine Specializzate Costruzioni Automobili and became a discontinued model in 1967. The design was a small open sports car powered by a 1092cc four-cylinder engine, with exposed wheels covered by bicycle type mudguards and was designed to race competitively.

Moonbeam IV by Ben Wood

The charm of these images, by photographer Ben Wood, is the fact that they are shot entirely on film. We live in a very modern digital age and sometimes taking a step back and respecting the traditional ways adds more quality to a piece. Salto

Waters crash and swell as a young man jumps into the ocean. Sun, sea, and salty air are a simple yet exhilarating combination, giving us freedom and liberty to enjoy life's pleasures. The moment is frozen in time, the moment of a leap of faith in action.

Brothers | Saddle & Lasso

A pair of Cowboys can be seen saddled up on their horses. The bright sunshine beams from above as the duo ride in to the sunset.

A long lasso is wound around a well-worn saddle. The sun streams in to the lens of the camera, transporting us to a day on the ranch.

Buffalo At Dawn | Moroccan Carpets

A small herd of bison are seen grazing at the break of dawn. The sun rises over Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming USA.

A neatly folded stack of decorative floor coverings from Morocco. The carpets are gorgeously patterned, with geometric designs and rich colour. A historic piece rich in culture.

Streak and Shadow | Window and Clouds

A single cloud streak floats above a traditional Adobe structure in Santa Fe, New Mexico. This contrast of the soft and hard textures offers a bold and interesting viewpoint on the historic city.

A charming view of a traditional façade in the city of Santa Fe, New Mexico. The city was founded in 1610 and is one of the most culturally rich cities in the United States. This charming view of the historic building is softened by the wispy clouds peeking through the window.

Cloud Over Adobe I | Cloud Over Adobe II

Beach Stallions by Malcolm Sanders

Herds of magnificent stallions gallop their way across sandy beaches, splashing waves and majestic lakes. The images are atmospheric, with sea spray and sand generating a mist that billows up from the flurry of hooves. The smoky effect adds to the cinematic appeal of the images, while sepia is the perfect choice for the Chestnut stallions.

Wyoming Wanderer

This sepia-toned shot of a bison in profile is a welcome inclusion in our range of animal artworks, not least because of that thoughtful look in his eye. The shaggy coat fades away beautifully to the sharp white background, but it's the bison himself that holds your attention.
